Delphi court hearings postponed

Bankruptcy court hearings to reject labor, supply contracts will begin Monday

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The bankruptcy court hearings to determine whether Delphi Corp. can reject its labor agreements and certain supply contracts with General Motors Corp. have been postponed, the company said on Friday.

Delphi, which was part of GM until it was spun off in 1999, said the court had granted further adjournments in both cases. It has scheduled a Sept. 28 status conference with the judge presiding over its bankruptcy case.

Friday was also the deadline for a second wave of UAW-represented Delphi employees to accept buyout offers. About 12,600 hourly employees have already taken early retirement offers.

A call to the UAW was not immediately returned.

The decision to postpone the bankruptcy court hearings came after GM, Delphi, and its unions met on Thursday with Judge Robert Drain of the Southern District of New York.

The hearings to abandon labor contracts and retirement obligations had been scheduled to resume on Monday, while the hearing over the GM contracts had been scheduled to begin Sept. 28. Instead, the parties will continue negotiations out of court.

The company's largest employee union, the United Auto Workers, said on its Web site that the postponement of the hearings was indefinite and that little progress had been made.

"While we have continued our discussions with General Motors and Delphi on issues concerning our members and retirees, we have no meaningful progress to report," the statement said. The postponements are "not an indication of any resolution of the many difficult and complex issues impacting UAW members and retirees."

Appearing in Detroit last Thursday, UAW President Ron Gettelinger had cited problems with the negotiations.

"We're just very frustrated with that mess," he said.

Gettelinger claimed that the early retirement and buyout deals Delphi had reached with its two largest unions should have helped the auto parts maker be more competitive.

He said, "It's simply a matter of greed now."

Power input sought

STATE GOVERNMENT:
Forum on power for economic development to be held Monday.

BY JILL TERRELLI

Those who think New York state needs to come up with a different plan to use its power will have an opportunity to have their voices heard.

From 1 to 3 p.m. on Monday, a state commission that was formed for the sole purpose of drafting a plan for how the state should use power for economic development will listen to the public.

For Western New Yorkers, it's a one-time only opportunity for in-person comment. Other forums are planned for New York City, Albany and Syracuse.

The forum, which will be held in Buffalo in the Walter J. Mahoney State Office Building, 65 Court St., is meant to inform the commission.

BANKING ON CHILD CARE

REBUILDING: Head Start executive director oversaw bank restoration project that will be honored later this month.

BY DENISE JEWELL

Geraldine Donovan looked at an empty bank building on Main Street and envisioned a child care center bustling with 3- and 4-year-olds.

The Niagara County Head Start executive director saw classrooms where tellers once worked and a kitchen in an old bookkeeping room in the former HSBC bank branch at the corner of Michigan Avenue.

It was Donovan who guided the $600,000 renovation to turn the century-old bank building into a school for five dozen preschoolers, said Niagara County Head Start Chairman Robert DiFrancesco.

"Her head was spinning when the idea was proposed," said DiFrancesco, who is also the principal of Niagara Catholic High School. "She was drawing plans on the backs of napkins."

The Niagara Beautification Commission will honor Niagara County Head Start on Sept. 28 for the bank restoration along with several groups and individuals who have worked to revitalize sites in the city.

Donovan, a LaSalle resident, has worked both in her role as an educator and in her personal life to influence revitalization in Niagara Falls.

As a long-time Niagara Falls Planning Board member, Donovan frequently makes decisions that affect construction projects in the city. She joined the city's Historic Preservation Commission when it was created under former Mayor Irene Elia.
